1861 CIVIL WAR LODGE OF RESEARCH

FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS
OF TENNESSEE

Brethren,

Question: In what state were the most battles fought during the War Between the States?

Answer: Virginia.

Question: In what state were the second-most battles fought? Answer: Tennessee.

It was therefore appropriate that Virginia organized the Civil War Lodge of Research. It was also appropriate that Tennessee constitute the second.

The 1861 Civil War Lodge of Research, Free and Accepted Masons of Tennessee, is a subordinate Lodge of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee, organized under the provisions of Chapter 24, Title 4, of the Tennessee Masonic Code, as amended. The Lodge was instituted as a continuation of the Masonic tradition of preserving our Heritage through Masonry, by fostering and expanding knowledge of the history and philosophy of the craft as it was associated with the Civil War of the United States (1861-1865). In so doing, the 1861 Civil War Lodge of Research expands upon and encourages Masonic study and research, assisting the Grand Lodge in the spreading of Masonic light and education by publishing Masonic information and educational material.

This Lodge of Research meets quarterly at various historical areas across the State. Its main focus, of course, is the compilation and dissemination of Civil War history, particularly as it pertains to Freemasonry. It functions as a Lodge of Research, the distinction being that it does not have a specific place of meeting. Additionally, it does not have the power to confer Degrees, but at some time in the future, may form a Degree Team that would perform in Era Costume.
